

Dr. Girish Mishra is currently a Professor of Internal Medicine and Chief of Gastroenterology at Atrium Health Wake Forest Baptist as well as the Executive Director of the Digestive Health Service Line.

He has been at Wake Forest for nearly 21 years, having served previously as the fellowship program director.

He completed his GI fellowship at the Medical University of South Carolina where he received advanced training in Endoscopic Ultrasound and is an internationally recognized expert in EUS with numerous publications and invited lectures

Dr. Mishra has been very active with the ASGE and ACG and has been a past Chair for the ASGE Publications Committee, as well as ASGE DDW Programming Committee-EUS. He has served as a Co-Chair for the Duke Alumni of the Triad and is a proud parent of 2 Tar Heel graduates

He is very proud and honored to have been one of the original founding members of the NCSG along with many of the former Presidents of our great society