Dr. Spaete received his BS in Zoology from Michigan State University and attended medical school at Brown University. He completed his internal medicine residency at the University of Michigan before moving to Durham for both his GI fellowship and advanced endoscopy fellowship at Duke University. He joined the Duke faculty as an advanced endoscopist in 2017.

Outside of work, Dr. Spaete enjoys exploring local trails with his wife and two children, often on a mountain bike. He is excited to join the board and looks forward to expanding the educational opportunities offered by the NCSG and strengthening collaboration among GI providers across the state.
